After Huntly had got his sister aboard the Rocky Mountain Limited and comfortably settled in her section he looked about to see if by any chance there were any of his friends aboard to whom he might confide the care of his sister for the journey from Chicago to Denver. His eye fell on Maddox—big Jim Maddox of Cripple Creek and Seattle and Los Angeles, a mining argonaut who knew his west as a Boston girl does her Henry James.

A moment later Maddox's big fist was squeezing the blood out of the clubman's limp hand.

"By thunder, Huntly, but I'm glad to see you. Let me see—last time I saw you was on the dump of the Mollie K., out in God's country. 'Member the day I drove you up Son-of-a-Gun hill and sold you 5,000 shares in the James G. Blaine? We saw weather that day, young man. The blizzard sure did hit us on the way home. You on the way out there now?"

Huntly rescued a paralyzed hand before he ventured on explanations. "No. I'm seeing my sister started. She has not been well, and the doctors have ordered a complete change. We're sending her to Denver. It was the original plan that I should go with her, but I received a telegram this morning that the senior partner of our firm has died suddenly, and it is imperative that I should leave for New York at once. Would it be asking too much of you to see that she doesn't get too lonesome and that she makes connections with my aunt at Denver?"

"Well, I guess not. That's what I'm here for—to help out my friends when they need me. But I'm not much of a lady's man, Miss Huntly will have to take me in the rough."

Now, big hearted, breezy Jim Maddox was the very man to cheer a homesick girl who was traveling in search of health. He was as full of good spirits and wholesome energy as a Fourth of July is of noise. He had in his varied past experiences enough back of him to beggar romance, and he had the gift of breezy narration as few men have it. To be sure, he didn't know anything about young college graduates from Bryn Mawr, but as soon as he had seen Miss Huntly he was more than willing to learn.

Helen Huntly accepted the introduction with outward reserve and with inward doubt. She was tired, and she did not want to have to smile and look pleasant to this big, awkward man for two whole days. But Maddox did not know of the existence of either the doubt or the reserve. If he had, it wouldn't have mattered. His big brown hand came out and buried the little white one, and somehow the girl found herself less lonely when she looked into the honest, smiling, blue eyed face of this tanned stranger.

Before they had reached Rock Island she was congratulating herself on the good fortune that had made him her traveling companion. He was the most interesting man on her list, she decided. More strange adventures had fallen to his lot than to a dozen average men. He told his experiences quite simply and because she was interested in hearing them, not at all because he was proud of them. He seemed to have gathered into his personality the freedom and the breadth of about a dozen of the mountain states. He wasn't coarse in the least, but he was as unconventional as a Kansas cyclone in action. He trampled unconsciously on her New England traditions with a vigor that would have shocked if it had not amused her. They simply did not exist for him; that was all.

The emotions of Jim Maddox were not a bit complex. When after two happy days he said goodby at the Union depot in Denver, where Miss Huntly's aunt met her, he had already made up his mind to marry her or know the reason why. As he phrased it to himself:

"You've struck the best vein of ore you ever unearthed, Jim Maddox, and if you don't follow it up you're the biggest fool in Arapahoe county."

He certainly followed it up, and if his mines at Cripple Creek required any great amount of personal attention during the next three weeks they must have suffered, for their owner openly and patently made it the business of his life to woo Miss Huntly. He organized picnics and excursions galore, and he always contrived to be the man who was paired off with her. Finally he induced a party of the elder Miss Huntly's choosing to go camping in the mountains near a new mine he was developing.

As to Miss Huntly, Jr., her feelings were as a house arrayed against itself. She found herself falling into a greater liking than she cared to admit for this free and easy blond Hercules, and the nature of her liking did not approve itself to her judgment. She knew, of course, that he was in love with her and the knowledge of it sent delightful thrills to her heart, but afterward she would scourge herself for it. The things that had formerly seemed to her vital she began to find herself appraising by his unconventional standards, and all the instincts of her life training fought against the concessions to the western spirit. Even while the charm of his easy breadth fascinated her, the Puritan and the social instincts of the girl rebelled at accepting them. She liked immensely the frank equality that existed between him and his workmen, but she knew that such a relation would not be possible for a minute in the east. And, after all, she told herself, she belonged to the east, at which point in her meditations Jim Maddox would perhaps arrive and set her heart to hammering at his friendly audacities.

It was at a picnic up Apex canyon that the young mine owner declared himself. After luncheon he had taken her farther up the gulch to see a curious rock formation, and there, seated on a big rock in the shallow mountain stream, with the steep bluffs rising on each side of them, he had asked her to marry him.

"I'm not worthy of you by a thousand miles. I'm only a rough, self made man with a sort of pick me up education. I don't suppose I'd know a Gainsborough from a Nattier if I saw them walking down the street together. I reckon I know the points of a cayuse, and I can tell pay ore when I see it, but that happens to be my business. So far as I can make it out, there's just one point in my favor—there couldn't any man love you more than I do, dear. I'll have to rest my case on that. I'd make you happy if it were in me."

Miss Huntly leaned forward and put her chin in her hand. Her gray eyes were troubled and her forehead furrowed. She looked quite cool, though her heart thumped madly.

"I'm ashamed of myself. I always thought that a girl ought to know her own heart. I have no patience with myself," she said.

"Do you mean"—

"I mean that I don't know, Mr. Maddox. I like you more than any man I ever met and in a different way, but I'm not sure that"—

From farther up the canyon there came a mighty roar. Maddox grew white beneath the tan. He gave the girl his hand and lifted her to her feet.

"Come, run for your life," he commanded hoarsely, and she, looking in his face, wondered at the sudden change.

They reached the bank and raced for the sides of the gorge that shut them in. Up the precipitous cliffs they clambered, his arm round her waist, clinging to scrub brush or flaming goldenrod, as chance happened. In another instant the great wall of water leaped into sight round the bend in the gorge and tore hungrily at them. Maddox felt the almost irresistible suction, but hung desperately to a slender quaking aspen with one hand while the other, still encircling the girl, clutched at a point of rock. The water caught fiercely at them, tore their footing from under them, beat against them with a force hardly to be denied. But Maddox knew the struggle was for the life he most valued on earth, for if the current once swept them away they would surely be beaten to pieces on the rocks.

"I can't hold on longer," she told him.

"You must," he bade her sternly "Just another minute, girl."

How long that minute was he never knew, but at last the water from the cloudburst had spent its force and fallen away from them. Together they worked slowly up the cliff to a great abutting rock, and on this the girl sat, almost fainting with fatigue and excitement. There was still a great fear in her face. She held her hands out to Maddox.

"Don't let me go. I am afraid," she said. Then again, shivering, "I am afraid, Jim."

His eyes shone. "It's all right now, Helen. The danger is past. I'll stand by you, little woman."

He put his arm around her and kissed her hair. She, still trembling, snuggled closer in his arms.

Watering Plants.

Watering is an exacting labor, and yet half of it is usually unnecessary. The reasons why it is unnecessary are two—the soil is so shallowly prepared that the roots do not strike deep enough; we waste the moisture by allowing the soil to become hard, thereby setting up capillary connection with the atmosphere and letting the water escape.

See how moist the soil is in spring. Mulch it so that the moisture will not evaporate. Mulch it with a garden rake, by keeping the soil loose and dry on top. This loose, dry soil is the mulch. There will be the moisture underneath. Save water rather than add it. Then when you do have to water the plants go at it as if you meant it. Do not dribble. Wet the soil clear through. Wet it at dusk or in cloudy weather. Before the hot sun strikes it renew your mulch or supply a mulch of fine litter. More plants are spoiled by sprinkling than by drought. Bear in mind that watering is only a special practice; the general practice is to so fit and maintain the ground that the plants will not need watering.—Country Life In America.

The Japanese Acrobat's Toes.

The little Japanese acrobat, in his short robe of black embroidered with gold dragons, walked slowly up the slanting wire cable to the very roof of the circus tent. There he paused a moment, and then—swish, swish, swish—he slid smoothly and gracefully down the steep wire to the ground. Elevating his voice above the loud applause an old circus man said: "That sliding trick has never been learned by a European. It's a trick that the Japs alone do. If you watched our little friend you noticed that he always kept the wire between his big toe and the second toe. When he slid, the wire was between his toes. That is the way the Japanese learn to walk the wire, but we English and Americans can't learn to walk in that way because our toes have not the same suppleness and strength. Our toes, confined for generations in unhygienic, tight, heavy leather boots, have no muscle and no mobility. To slide down a wire requires well developed toes first of all. We, therefore, can't match the Japs in this showy, telling and difficult feat."—Philadelphia Record.

Menagerie Menus.

Catering to animals requires both a plentiful and varied supply of foods, as may be seen from this report of material fed at the London Zoological gardens last year. For the flesh eating guests there were supplied 144 tons of horseflesh, nearly 9 tons of goatflesh and 9,530 chicken heads. Fourteen and a half tons of fish, in addition to 1,260 pints of shrimps, furnished the water fowl with their daily fare, while 297 loads of hay and 6,030 bunches of greens supplied the ruminants. Other items on the list were 872 pounds of grapes, 498 pounds of sugar, 6,262 loaves of bread, 5,086 quarts of milk, 303 pounds of crackers and more than 33,000 eggs. The chicken heads were for the various members of the rat family, the eggs were fed to the birds, and the shrimps formed the easiest way to the affections of the flam'ngoes.

Humility and a Hair Shirt.

"The bishop of Arichat," said Father Burke, "is a most unassuming creature—a man who keeps the stone in his episcopal ring turned against his palm, so that he may not be recognized as a bishop."

"He must be an extraordinary person," Stephen Essex, the Methodist parson, admitted.

"It is his humility. I am told he wears a hair shirt the year round."

"Is that an evidence of humility?" Stephen asked, with an incredulous smile.

"Try it and see," the priest advised. "Have you tried it, Father Burke?"

"Yes, and one day's trial convinced me that I was neither a saint nor a rhinoceros," he said, with a wry face.—From "The Bishop's Niece," by George H. Picard.

The Flying Fish.

The flying fish when in the air uses its pectoral fins precisely as a boy does a kite, the weight of the fish's body taking the place of the string. As a boy runs when he lets a kite go, so the flying fish makes a preliminary rush through the water before ascending into the air. In this way as it leaves the surface air impinges upon the lower area of the fin wings, carrying the body upward and onward with a gliding motion. The anatomical structure of the flying fish is such that it cannot flap its "wings," and so it possesses little or no guiding power when in flight. This accounts for the fact that it frequently finds its way through ships' open ports or down skylights or lands helplessly upon deck.

Hans Christian Andersen.

A critic writes of Hans Christian Anderson: "His vanity was perhaps his most salient characteristic. He was photographed scores of times in every position and costume, and he never wearied of new presentments of his strong but unhandsome features. His whims were legion. He had a morbid horror of being buried alive and always set a slip of paper by his bedside bearing the words, 'Seg es skindod' ('I am in a trance'). His hosts often found him an exacting guest, but his little failings were easily pardoned for the sake of his genius and his childlike nature."

An Irish Incident.

"Driver," said an English tourist who was being driven on a jaunting car through the Donegal highlands, "I notice that when you speak to your friends whom you meet on the road you invariably do so in Irish, but when you address your horse you do so in English. How is this?" To which came the retort: "Musha, now thin, isn't English good enough for him?"

Good Idea.

"The ancient Chaldeans," observed the professor, "used to write their letters on bricks."

"And a good idea too," chimed in practical Mr. Graball. "Then when a girl sent a fellow's letters back to him he could use 'em to build a stable or something."

A Woman's Health

Is a heritage too sacred to be experimented with. For her peculiar and delicate ailments only medicines of known composition and which contain no alcohol, narcotics, or other harmful or habit-forming drugs should be employed. Such a medicine is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—a remedy with a record of over forty years of cures to recommend it; a remedy, the makers of which print its formula on every bottle-wrapper and attest its completeness and correctness under oath; a remedy devised and adapted to woman's delicate constitution by an educated physician—an experienced specialist in woman's diseases; a remedy, every ingredient of which has received the written endorsement of the most eminent medical writers of all the several schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar diseases; a remedy which has more bona-fide cures to its credit than any other sold by druggists for woman's special requirements. It is not given away in the form of "trial bottles" to be experimented with, but is sold at a fair price by all dealers in medicines.

If a woman has bearing down, or dragging pains, low down in the abdomen, or pelvis, backache, frequent headaches, dizzy or fainting spells, is nervous and easily startled, has gnawing feeling in stomach, sees imaginary floating specks, or spots before her eyes, has melancholia, or "blues," or a weakening disagreeable drain from pelvic organs, she can make no mistake by resorting to the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It will invigorate and tone up the whole system and especially the pelvic organs.

No woman suffering from any of the above symptoms can afford to accept any secret nostrum or medicine of unknown composition, as a substitute for a medicine like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which is OF KNOWN COMPOSITION and has a record of over forty years and sells more largely to-day than ever before. Its makers withhold no secrets from their patients, believing open publicity to be the very best guaranty of merit.

Dr. Pierce invites all suffering women to consult him by letter free of charge. All letters of consultation are held as sacredly confidential and an answer is returned in plain sealed envelope. Address: Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.

County Board of Education and the Nolan Case.

THE resolution passed by the Sonoma County Board of Edution last Monday evening in summing up its findings in the case of W. C. Nolan, charged with misconduct as a public school teacher, is evasive, vacillating and practically leaves the case just where it was at the outset. It neither exonerates or condemns the accused principal and leaves him with the charges still hanging over his head, like the sword of Damocles. In this respect the resolution is cruel, because one thing is certain the man is either guilty or innocent, and why keep him on the rack. If they thought him guilty from the evidence before them they should have said so out of justice to the parents of the scholars of the Sonoma public school, who have a right to a verdict in this case, as the accused principal has been thrust on them by an arrogant Board of School Trustees pending these charges.

If, on the other hand, the evidence proved the innocence of the accused, or even left a reasonable doubt in their minds as to his guilt, Nolan was entitled to that doubt, and should have been exonerated instead of being handed out a resolution which is being bandied about as a "Scotch verdict."

The Board of Education, or at least some of the members, have exhibited a woeful lack of courage in disposing of this sensational case, and as a result our grammar school is in a badly demoralized condition, and the people down this way nigh distracted.

Journalistic Personalities.

The policy being pursued by some of our big San Francisco contemporaries since the fire, we are sorry to say, has anything but a tendency to advance the upbuilding of that stricken city. Take for instance the big hue and cry raised by the Bulletin over the fact that M. H. de Young, who lost millions in the great disaster that overtook that city on those memorable April days, by the mistake of a surveyor, encroached upon a small street in the rear of one of his pieces of property devastated by the fire. The mistake was rectified, but for all that the Bulletin, which ought to be engaged in a better cause at this time, gave him a roasting that was as hot as it was unjust. Why? Because M. H. de Young happened to be a newspaper rival and a Relief Fund Commissioner. Had he been a plain ordinary business man no attention whatever would have been paid to the mistake in the survey, which did not then, nor could it ever, menace the people's right to a thoroughfare long since dedicated to public use.

In these times when everybody in the metropolis is striving with might and main to rear upon the ruins a greater and newer San Francisco it seems to us to be in very bad taste, to use a mild term, for our big and exterprising city contemporary to indulge in such a profitless pastime as dishing out journalistic personalities that does it no good and are productive of much harm to an already stricken city.

A SENSATION was created in Santa Rosa the other day, the principal characters involved being two respectable but indiscreet girls, a handsome stranger and an automobile. The unknown, it appears, while speeding along one of the fashionable boulevards of the "Rose City" espied the girls, who were out for an evening promenade, and invited them to a seat beside him. They accepted the stranger's invitation and the inevitable followed—that is to say, the girls were insulted by the fellow, who forced his attentions upon them. This was followed by piercing shrieks, two frightened lassies left alone on the outskirts of the city and a fleeing automobilist, who made good his escape, going in the direction of Petaluma. (No reflection on that town.) The episode, we will not call it an escapade, ought to prove a wholesome lesson to those girls, who the very moment they accepted the invitation of an utter stranger to go riding with him cast all maidenly modesty aside and thus invited insult. They could hardly expect anything else under the circumstances, and we have no sympathy for them, Nor do we blame the fellow, who not being a gentleman, had a right to assume that the girls were of his own kind. The moral of this is that girls should never accept the attentions of strangers if they place any value whatever on their reputations.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dread disease that science has been able to cure in all its stags and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Halls Catarrh Cure is taken internally, actiing directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

THE SONOMA VALLEY UNION HIGH SCHOOL

De Witt Montgomery, the Principal, Explains the Various Courses of Study.

The Sonoma Valley Union High School opened last Monday with an increased attendance and the following teachers: Principal, De Witt Montgomery; vice principal, T. A. Lewis; commercial department, R. H. Piatt and Miss Catherine Meyer. Following is Principal Montgomery's explanation of the course of study for the next four years:

A commercial department has this year been added to the regular courses of the High School. This department is in charge of Mr. Piatt, an experienced teacher and commercial man. It includes two courses, one extending over four years, and one to be completed in two years. These courses are as follows:

FOUR-YEAR COURSE.

First Year—English, commercial arithmetic, spelling, Algebra, bookkeeping.

Second Year—English, ancient history, geometry, bookkeeping.

Third Year—English, English history, shorthand, typewriting. commercial law, commercial geography.

Fourth Year—Business English, Amerirran history and sciences, physics, shorthand, typewriting.

TWO-YEAR COURSE.

First Year—Bookkeeping, commercial arithmetic, spelling, shorthand, typewriting. business English.

Second Year — Bookkeeping, shorthand, typewriting, commercial geography, commercial law, American history and civics.

The four-year course leads to graduation and a diploma, and is of equal rank with the other courses the school. It combines the business subjects of the regular course; it purpose being to fit the graduate for any ordinary commercial position, as well as to make him an intelligent and efficient citizen and member of the community.

The two-year course contains almost exclusively business subjects and entitles those who complete it satisfactorily to certificates of proficiency in the subjects taken. It is especially recommended to those who have had the regular High School course, or its equivalent, but is open to those who have completed the courses of the grammar school, or its equivalent, if they have not the time or opportunity for taking the longer course.

Persons who have had a high school training, or its equivalent, will be admitted to any one or more subjects of the two-year business course.

It is to be hoped that there are many who may be able to take advantage of one or other of these courses. Admittance will be open for several days yet, and the principal will be glad to talk with any who may contemplate entering.

DEWITT MONTGOMERY,
Principal.

COUNTY'S WRECKED COURT HOUSE.

Nobody Wants the "White Elephant," and It Will Cost Good Money to Give it Away.

On Thursday last the Board of Supervisors received and opened bids for what remains of Sonoma's $75,000 Court House, which was all but completely demolished in its wrestle with the big earthquake last April.

When the bids were opened it was discovered that the once fine structure could not be given away without a cash bonus of several thousand dollars. The bids for wrecking the building and carting away the salvage were as follows: J. J. Forget, $2,750; D. E Albers, $3,250; Riley & Maroni, $3,497; Bacigalupi & Forni, $4,500.

The bids were taken under advisement, with the chances are that the "white elephant" cannot be given away without a big cash bonus.

NOLAN NEITHER FOUND GUILTY OR INNOCENT

Resolution Passed by the Board of Education Non-Committal.

On Monday last the trial of Principal Nolan of the Sonoma Grammar School, charged with misconduct, was resumed before the Board of Education in Santa Rosa.

The defense introduced three witnesses, Chas. Potter, Wm. Reigelhuth and Mrs. Van der Nallion.

Potter testified to having been in the company of Nolan all afternoon of July 4, 1905.

Riegelhuth swore that he was with Mrs. Quartaroli and her daughter on the same afternoon.

Mrs. Van der Nallion of San Francisco testified as to a visit made to her by Miss Quartaroli.

These witnesses were introduced to prove an alibi.

Late in the evening the Board of Education, the case having been closed, passed the following peculiar resolution, which is ambiguous, vacillating and unsatisfactory to both sides of the case, as it neither vindicates or condemns the accused:

Resolved, That the Sonoma County Board of Education having heard and duly considered the testimony in the matter of the charge of unprofessional conduct against W. C. Nolan of Sonoma, is of the opinion that the evidence is insufficient to cause this Board to recommend the revocation of the life diploma of W. C. Nolan.

Principal Nolan, says the Santa Rosa Republican, was dissatisfied with the findings of the Board, having confidently expected to be exonerated of the charges made against him.

Made Her First Trip Last Monday.

The Sonoma Valley Transportation Company's twin-screw propeller "Sonoma Valley," made her initial trip between her landing place on Sonoma Creek and San Francisco last Monday with a goodly amount of freight aboard. From now on the boat will make regular trips between Sonoma Creek points and San Francisco, leaving her landing place on the creek every Monday, Wednesday and Friday in the afternoon at high water. Extra trips will be made as the fruit trade demands. Returning, the "Sonoma Valley" will leave Washington-street wharf, San Francisco, every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday morning until further notice.

Announces Candidacy for Re-Election.

C. H. Pond has announced himself for the office of District Attorney for the second term. In a conversation with him recently he wished to thank the public for their support during his incumbency of that office. Mr. Pond has fairly and impartially enforced the laws and administered the affairs of that office in an efficient, unpolitical and economical manner that has met with the approval of all regardless of politics and such an officer is deserving of recognition, not only by his own party but by the people generally, and should be returned to the office for which he aspires.

Booklets Will Come Out.

The printers are now equipped to turn out the five thousand booklets compiled by Celeste Granice-Murphy for the advertisement of Sonoma Valley. These booklets contain a resume of Sonoma Valley's resources finely illustrated. The object has been to set forth the best and fairest examples of Sonoma's industries and attractions. There are no advertisements in the book and those who have subscribed to the enterprise have done so purely as a matter of public spirit and home pride, realizing that the valley will benefit by this class of advertising. All outstanding subscriptions are due and can be paid at the Sonoma Valley Bank.

GHASTLY SUICIDE IN EL VERANO

San Francisco Machinist Cuts Wrists With Glass and Bleeds to Death.

Wm. Stark, a San Francisco machinist who came to this valley after the earthquake and fire and put up at the El Verano Villa, committed suicide on Friday night of last week. The man, who was evidently deranged, broke a mirror in his room and with several sharp-pointed slivers of glass severed the arteries of both wrists and bled to death. He also ghashed his throat in a horrible manner. The deceased has a wife and two daughters in San Francisco. Coroner Blackburn held an inquest on the remains Saturday morning and a verdict of suicide was rendered by the jury sworn in to inquire into the man's death.

Our El Verano correspondent gives the following additional particulars of the frightful suicide:

Last Thursday a man named Stark came up from San Francisco and registered at the Villa. Between 9 and 10 p. m. that night Louie Lamotte heard a heavy fall upstairs and thinking something wrong went up to investigate. Upon opening the door a horrible sight met his gaze. There upon the floor lay Stark unconscious and bleeding in a frightful manner. Louie lost no time in calling assistance and sending for a doctor. Everything possible was done for him, but he had lost so much blood that he could not survive and died Friday night. Investigation showed that he had taken a weight from the shuffle board to his room and with it broken the looking glass. With a piece of glass he hacked his left wrist in a frightful manner and also cut his right temple. It was noticed during the day that he acted in a very peculiar manner. It was understood later that he was having trouble with his family and a friend brought him here thinking a change would cause him to forget, but it preyed too heavily on his mind, with the result that he sought this means of ending his troubles.

Voters See That You Are Registered.

Every voter in the county must re-register if they wish to cast a ballot at the coming election this fall. The Great Register of 1904 was cancelled last January and your name will not appear upon the Great Register of 1906 unless you call upon County Clerk Wright or some one of his registration deputies on or before September 26th This is an important matter and should not be overlooked by voters.

Benefit Ball.

A grand ball will be given at the Bellevue Hotel, El Verano, this (Saturday) evening, for the benefit of the Athletic Club recently organized by the young men in that place. The dances given at the Bellevue are always noted for the pleasant time had by all who attend. An orchestra of three pieces—violin, cornet and piano—has been engaged for this particular occasion and a good time is assured. Turn out everybody and help the new club along.

DEL CARLO SENTENCED TO 12 YEARS

Judge Burnett Has No Mercy on the Ex-Convict.

Felici Del Carlo, who was tried and convicted of the crime of burglary in the Superior Court of this county last week, came up before Judge Burnett for sentence last Monday. The attorney for Del Carlo made a motion for a new trial, which was denied by the Judge, who then sentenced the prisoner to serve twelve years in the Folsom State Prison.

Del Carlo is a hard case. He has already served a sentence in the penitentiary and last year was tried for arson, but was acquitted. The crime for which he is now to do a twelve years' penance was the burglarizing of a saloon in Santa Rosa a month or two ago.

Monday morning all the children tucked their books under their arms and started for the school house. J. J. McMinn came down from Santa Rosa on the morning train and was already there to greet them. El Verano is fortunate in having Mr. McMinn to instruct the children for another season.

James E. Sullivan, President Roosevelt's special commissioner at the recent Olympic games in Athens, says: "The best I can wish any American athlete is that he may some day enjoy the opportunity of visiting Athens for the international games. I am quite sure I am conservative in my estimate when I say that not less than 180,000 people witnessed the finish of the Marathon race." Such a sight would be a treat to any one. We do not know but we may have some young boy among us who would make an athlete that could some day visit this great meeting to represent America. But to bring forth such a result they must have training. Why can't the young men, old men and boys join together and start an athletic club here? They can! Let the parents take as much interest as any one. Show the boys that you take an interest in them. I believe if the parents can think back far enough they can remember that they were children at one time and how much they would have enjoyed something of this kind. Get together and get this started. It will be easy enough after the start is made. Get a place so the boys can of an evening and enjoy themselves and the different forms of exercises will do them good. Show your boys that you trust them to be and act the man when they go out and it is seldom they will not do so. Now is the time to act.

THE SECRET OUT.

A Wide Open Statement.

To refute the many false and malicious attacks, bogus formulæ and other untruthful statements published concerning Doctor Pierce's World-famed Family Medicines, the Doctor has decided to publish all the ingredients entering into his "Favorite Prescription" for weak women and his equally popular tonic alterative known as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Hereafter every bottle of these medicines leaving the great Laboratory at Buffalo, N. Y., will bear upon it a full list of all the ingredients entering into the compound. Both are made entirely from native medicinal roots. The ingredients of the "Golden Medical Discovery" being a non-alcoholic extract of Golden Seal root, Queen's root, Black-cherrybark, Mandrake root, Blood-root and Stone root, preserved by chemically pure glycerine.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, being made of native medicinal roots, is next to Nature and is the best tonic you can use. It fills the blood with rich, red blood corpuscles. It gives you a feeling of strength, and it puts sunshine into your system as no other remedy can. That is why Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has been such a favorite for the past forty years. No man or woman can be either healthy or handsome who has impurities in the blood, for it will show in pimples, boils, and eruptions in the dark circles under the eyes and in the sallow complexion. After taking "Golden Medical Discovery" you are bound to have pink cheeks and a fresh complexion. The muscles get the good, rich, red blood, that puts on strength. It is a flesh builder, but not a fat builder.

As an example of the good results thus obtained, note the following letter:

"In the year 1899, I had an attack of indigestion and got so bad that my home doctor said he could not do me any good," writes Mr. G. Treat, of Gordonville, Texas. "I wrote to you and you advised me to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, so I bought six bottles, and when I commenced using it I was so weak I could hardly walk about the house. By the time I had used one bottle my stomach and bowels commenced to heal. There were strips of the lining of my bowels as large as a man's two fingers passed and I had a great deal of misery in my stomach and bowels, and also in the rectum especially. I could not eat anything without having much distress afterward, but by the time I had taken eight bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' I was sound and well, and could eat anything I pleased without suffering in the least. Could also do as much work in a day as I ever could. I have not suffered from the trouble since."

MEDICINES OF KNOWN COMPOSITION.

If suffering from an obstinate malady which would one naturally prefer to take a medicine of known composition, every ingredient of which has the endorsement of the most eminent medical practitioners and writers, or one which, for aught you may know, may be made up of very inefficient and even harmful agents? Is it not best to insist upon knowing what one is taking, as is every one's right, whether being prescribed for by the family physician or making use of a proprietary remedy? We think so, especially in view of the disparaging articles concerning various advertised remedies with which the drug and medical journals have been filled for months past. Doctor Pierce courts the severest criticism of the medical profession as to the value of his published formulæ, confident that he will receive fair treatment from all fair-minded, well qualified brethren of the medical profession who cannot be blamed for not endorsing medicines of the composition of which they and the people are kept in ignorance.

Pierce's Pleasant Pellets

These are the Original Little Liver Pills, first put up over 40 years ago, by old Dr. R. V. Pierce. They've been much imitated but never equaled. Smallest, easiest to take and best. They're tiny, sugar-coated, anti-bilious granules, a compound of refined and concentrated vegetable extracts. Without disturbance or trouble, constipation, indigestion, bilious attacks, sick and bilious headaches, and all derangements of the liver, stomach, and bowels are prevented, relieved, and cured. Permanently cured, too. By their mild and natural action, these little Pellets gently lead the system into natural ways again. Their influence lasts.

BARNUM ON THE DEFENSIVE.

The Great Showman and Three Curiosities of His Museum.

Mr. Barnum's innate and exuberant love of a joke, which was a trait maternally inherited, and his frequent habit of self depreciation were not always quite understood by the public. He therefore suffered sometimes from too much of his own disparaging frankness. His first autobiography, issued in 1855, was not meant to be taken as literal truth, but it was so taken, and the criticism of it was very bitter. The soberer matter of fact public of that day did not see the Pickwickian sense and the orientalism of statement that pervaded it. The cold type could not carry with it the twinkling of the author's eye.

The three things, however, which brought upon him the sharpest criticism were the three curiosities of his show which were called Joyce Heth, the Woolly Horse, and the Fee Gee Mermaid. The first of these was said to be Washington's body servant and was given an incredible age; the second one was a real colt that was a freak; the last was probably of Japanese manufacture. Mr. Barnum constructed neither the second nor the third, but bought them from exhibiters, and he was himself fooled at first by the certificates of Joyce Heth's history.

Barnum frankly admits in his biography that he employed two of them to advertise his museum and was not trying to make their history too exact in announcing them. He romanced somewhat, he says regretfully, in describing the horse, born in Indiana, as a curiosity discovered by Colonel Fremont in the Rocky mountains, but did this to call attention to a museum of curiosities of which it, with the other two, was merely a fractional part. He said he should not do this again, and expressed a wish that it had not been done at all. The best palliation he could plead for these schemes was that without them he did give a big money's worth to all who visited his museum. No perfectly ethical defense beyond this was offered.—Joel Benton in Century.

Both Thought Alike.

Jones and Smith were two old bachelors who lived on the most intimate terms, constantly dined together and smoked the peaceful pipe and occasionally went off together for a week's holiday by the sea. But a change came over the spirit of Smith's dream. Well on in the fifties he got married, and on his return from the honeymoon invited Jones to come and dine with him and be a witness of his happiness.

The dinner over, the old friends sat down in front of the fire after Mrs. Smith had gone upstairs.

"Well, my dear Jones," said Benedict, "now tell me quite candidly what do you think of my dear wife?"

Jones hesitated for a moment, then replied:

"Well, Smith, if I must speak quite candidly, I don't think much of her."

Smith patted him on his knee as he replied confidentially:

"Neither do I, my dear Jones."

When George Raised Tobacco.

The Wills Tobacco company of Bristol, England, says a London correspondent, cherishes an autograph letter from George Washington to the original of Wills' firm, written while the Father of His Country was still a grower of tobacco. It runs as follows:

Virginia, 25th November, 1759.

Gentlemen—Some time this week I expect to get on board the Cary for your house fifty hogsheads of tobacco of my own and Jno. Parke Custis', which please to insure in the usual manner. I shall also by the same ship send you ten or twelve hogsheads more if I can get them on board in time, but this, I believe, will be impracticable if Captain Tulman uses that dispatch in loading which he now has in his power to do. I am, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

G. WASHINGTON.

She Was So Pleasant.

Oliver Wendell Holmes related a little incident as occurring in his own life which had no little effect on him.

"Many years ago," he said, "in walking among the graves at Mount Auburn, I came upon a plain, white marble slab which bore an epitaph of only four words, but to my mind they meant more than any of the labored descriptions on other monuments: 'She was so pleasant.' That one note revealed the music of a life of which I knew nothing more."

Pleasant For the Baby.

A Canadian firm recently placed with the Montreal and Toronto newspapers an advertisement of a new nursing bottle it had patented and was about to place on the market. After giving directions for use, the ad. ended in this manner:

"When the baby is done drinking, it must be unscrewed and laid in a cool place under a tap. If the baby does not thrive on fresh milk, it should be boiled."

IN GREAT DEMAND.

The demand for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy here has been so great that I have scarcely been able to keep it in stock. It has cured cases of dysentry here when all other remedies failed.—Frank Jones, Pikeville, Ind. This remedy is for sale by L. S. Simmons.

The Self Possessed Bride.

One is in the habit nowadays of seeing brides absolutely self possessed, almost jocose, laughing and smiling and nodding to their friends. Mothers and sisters never cry nowadays at parting —Lady Violet Greville in Graphic.

Oddities.

Because a man cannot hear a dew drop is no sign that he is deaf, nor is it a sign of blindness because he never saw a horse fly, a board walk, a stone fence, a dog's pants, a rope walk or a clam bake.

UNNECESSARY EXPENSE.

Acute attacks of colic, diarrhoea and dysentery come on without warning and prompt relief must be obtained. There is no necessity of incurring the expense of a physician's service in such cases if Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is at hand. A dose of this remedy will relieve the patient before a doctor could arrive. It has never been known to fail, even in the most severe and dangerous cases and no family should be without it. For sale by L. S. Simmons.

AN ANCIENT CUSTOM.

Wassailing of Apple Trees Still Observed in Parts of England.

What is the wassailing of apple trees?

This is an old custom, fast dying out, but still observed in parts of Somerset and Devon. At Wooton-Basset, near Minehead, the ceremony takes place on old Twelfth eve. All assemble at the farmhouse, and, after a hearty meal, form a procession to the nearest orchard, the master in front with a light, and men with old guns, blunderbusses and anything that makes a noise, in the rear. Plenty of cider is taken and some pieces of toast.

When the orchard is reached a ring is formed, and the master, in the center, seizes a branch and sings a verse beginning, "Oh, apple tree, I wassail thee, in hopes that thou wilt blow." Then all shout in chorus:

Hatfuls, capfuls, three bushel bagfuls,
Barn oorfuls, tullet holefuls,
And a little heap under the stairs.

Then follow cheers, drinking of healths, shouts of "Now, Tom Pod, we wassail thee!" and the placing of the pieces of toast, soaked in cider, among the branches for the robins.—London Answers.

SUMMER DIARRHEA IN CHILDREN

During the hot weather of the summes months the first unnatural looseness of a child's bowels should have immediate attention, so as to check the disease before it becomes serious. All that is necessary is a few doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy followed by a dose of castor oil to cleanse the system. Rev. M. O. Stockland, pastor of the First M. E. Church, Little Falls, Minn., writes: "We have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for several years and find it a very valuable remedy, especially for summer disorders in children." Sold by L. S. Simmons.

Zangwill's Revenge.

While yet an obscure writer Israel Zangwill submitted to an American magazine a poem, which he received back in due course with the customary slip expressing the editor's great sorrow at his inability to make use of the contribution.

The manuscript found its way into a pigeonhole, to be resurrected some time later when fame had found him out. The poem was sold to the same magazine to which it had originally been sent, but this time the editor cabled a request to the author and paid a fancy price for it.

"MAKE HAY WHILE THE SUN SHINES."

There is a lesson in the work of the thrifty farmer. He knows that the bright sunshine may last but a day and he prepares for the showers which are so liable to follow. So it should be with every household. Dysentry, diarrhoea and cholera morbus may attack some member of the home without warning. Chamberlain's Colic, Chorer and Diarrhoea Remedy, which is the best known medicine for these diseases, should always be kept at hand as immediate treatment is necessary and delay may prove fatal. Sold at Simmons' drug store.

An Odd Moorish Custom.

As a people the Moors are already well inclined to anything that gilds life. A correspondent says: "Nothing delights them more as a means of agreeably spending an hour or two than squatting on their heels in the streets or on some door stoop, gazing at the passersby, exchanging compliments with their acquaintances. Native 'swells' consequently promenade with a piece of felt under their arms, on which to sit when they wish."

CHILDREN IN PAIN

Never cry as do children who are suffering from hunger. Such is the cause of all babies who cry and are treated for sickness, when they really are suffering from hunger. This is caused from their food not being assimilated but devoured by worms. A few doses of White's Cream Vermifuge will cause them to cease crying and begin to thrive at once. Give it a trial. Sold at Simmons' Drug Store.

A Harsh Order.

On the beach near an English town a sign bearing this legend was nailed to a post:

"Notice.—Any person passing beyond this point will be drowned. By order of the magistrate."

Married.

Young Husband—I wish I were single again. Wife—What for? You monster! Young Husband—To have the joy of marrying you again. Wife—You darling!

WHY FRET AND WORRY

When your child has a severe cold. You need not fear pneumonia or other pulmonary diseases if you keep supplied with Ballard's Horehound Syrup—a positive cure for colds, coughs, whooping cough and bronchitis. Mrs. Hall, of Sioux Falls, S. D., writes: "I have used your wonderful Ballard's Horehound Syrup, on my children for five years. Its results have been wonderful." Sold at Simmons' Drug Store.

The Real Acme.

"The acme of happiness," gushed the ardent lover, "is to marry the woman you love."

"There's something in that," responded the old married man, "but the main point is to love the woman you marry."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Two of a Kind.

"I tell you my love for you is making me mad—mad!"

"Well, keep quiet about it. It's had just the same effect upon papa."

Not a Contractor.

"Does your son worry you by contracting debts?"

"He doesn't contract debts; he expands them."

DON'T BE BLUE

And lose all interest when help is within reach. Herbine will make that liver perform its duties properly. S. B. Vaughn, Elba, Ala., writes: "Being a constant sufferer from constipation and a disordered liver, I have found Herbine to be the best medicine, for these troubles, on the market. I have used it constantly. I believe it to be the best medicine of its kind, and I wish all sufferers from these troubles to know the good Herbine has done me." Sold at Simmons' Drug Store.

A Question of Cuts.

"There is no short cut to fame," remarked the wise guy.

"How about the upper cut?" suggested the simple mug, looking up from the sporting page.—Philadelphia Record.

Six per Cent Earnings Guaranteed

Act Quickly

Look out for that "rainy day!"

It comes sooner or later for so many—we can't tell to-day who may want on the morrow.

Prepare now while you are able for any misfortune that may overtake you. Don't run any risks.

Here is something that will help you provide for the rainy day—an investment that carries with it unusual benefits and proves its value from the minute you buy the stock.

Smith's Cash Store is well and favorably known all over the West. Its reputation is of the best and in volume of business it is making tremendous strides forward every year. Some five years ago the stock was selling for $5.00 a share. To-day the price is $10.00 a share. These figures demonstrate what a thriving institution is this biggest Mail Order House on the Pacific Coast.

Each share of stock is guaranteed to earn 6 per cent a year. But the greatest benefit is derived by the stockholder from the discounts given to the holders of five or more shares of stock. You can buy anything to eat, use or wear at the same price the goods would cost your local dealers. We call them "Owner's Prices."

Suppose you buy goods that altogether cost $50 at our wholesale rate. If you are a stockholder you get a discount amounting to $2.50, and your bill is only $47.50. The saving you will make in one year in addition to the earnings will in all probability more than cover the investment.

Year after year you will be effecting big savings. But should hard times knock at your door—and you must not be too sure that something of that sort will not happen—think what it will mean to you to be able to buy everything at cost prices. It might be the very thing that would help you to survive the period of distress.

We are increasing the amount of our capital stock. We are telling you about the stock because we think you ought to invest for your own sake. You couldn't buy stock in any other concern that would pay you so well.

It will not be long before the price of the stock is advanced. You know that means there are not many days remaining in which you can take advantage of this great offer.

For your convenience we are printing a coupon which you ought to fill out—it does not obligate you in any way. Send it at once.
